

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A plastics processing machine can be operated more flexibly by providing the controller of the plastic-processing machine with a wireless communication device that can exchange status and operating information with a remote input/output device via a communication network. The remote input/output device can be, for example, a mobile telephone or a handheld computer with integrated wireless capabilities.